

Emergency Response in Israel

Meeting Urgent Humanitarian Needs and Providing Psychosocial Support

Welcome the stranger.

The Situation

More than one month after the unprecedented October 7 terrorist incursion into Israel, the impact continues to be felt across the country. As families grieve the more than 1,400 lives lost, rockets continue to target heavily populated civilian centers across the country – and an estimated 240 people are still being held hostage in Gaza. An estimated 200,000–250,000 Israelis have been internally displaced, including dozens of communities near the Gaza Strip and along the border with Lebanon, where increased tensions have led the government to issue evacuation orders.

For more than 70 years, HIAS has utilized its presence in Israel to aid newcomers and refugees through providing services and creating safe spaces of welcome. Within 24 hours of the brutal attacks of October 7, HIAS activated its Emergency Response team to provide life-saving support to those displaced in Israel and provided critical security information to asylum seekers and displaced families. HIAS will continue to focus on providing basic needs, cash assistance, mental health, and legal protections to the hundreds of thousands of people displaced.

Humanitarian Needs

To understand critical needs and gaps in services, HIAS Emergency Response teams assessed displaced communities and consulted with local and national NGOs within 48 hours of the attacks. Assessments confirmed the need for coordinated and sustained basic needs including cash assistance, counseling and psychosocial support, and an array of protection programs for the displaced, especially children. Displaced persons who fall outside of government support, such as refugees and migrant workers, were further identified as having urgent needs. HIAS continues to assess needs, reaching out to refugees, migrants, Israeli citizens, and other communities in locations where needs are reportedly unmet. Like many rapid onset emergencies, there is a swell of community-organized services and support for those displaced, however, more sustainable solutions are needed as teams prepare for the days and weeks ahead.

HIAS Emergency Response

HIAS' response centers on four program types of emergency assistance: 1) Food and Household Items, 2) Cash Assistance, 3) Protection Services, and 4) Mental Health and Psychosocial Support. Focusing in areas of displacement, HIAS' emergency response programming aims to serve those most vulnerable (including citizens, refugees, asylum seekers, and migrants) across Israel. HIAS' model of partnership emphasizes the importance of working with local organizations on the ground. HIAS' response thus far has reached over 86,000 individuals, both directly and through these critical local service providers.

HIAS began life-saving distributions to remote vulnerable communities that were forcibly displaced from the attacks in the South. This includes Eritrean families who had been seeking asylum in Israel before the crisis.

Basic Needs / Non-Food Items: Hygiene supplies, household items, infant items, clothing, computers, school, and play materials. HIAS distributed food and NFI items to 80 displaced asylum-seeking families displaced from Ashqelon to Nitzana. HIAS will continue supporting this population in coordination with the Jewish Agency.

Cash-Based Assistance: Cash and voucher assistance is a critical need for families while heads of households are unable to work. HIAS continues to distribute cash assistance to affected Ukrainian families and is expanding its cash assistance to reach other groups unable to access government services.

Supporting our Partners: Expanding impact in Israel through local partners for greater food, protection, counseling, and legal services support, focusing on the displaced.

Mental Health and Psychosocial Support (MHPSS): Psychological first aid and stress management group support, individual and community-based support, multilingual MHPSS hotline and appropriate service referrals.

Child Protection: Psychosocial and recreational interventions for children, with linkages to referral pathways for longer-term care.

Protection: HIAS provides information (in appropriate languages) and referrals to affected populations to help them access services. HIAS directly provides legal support to vulnerable populations.

HIAS' Commitment to Global Emergencies

For decades, HIAS has responded to crises around the world to better assist displaced populations — including refugees, asylum seekers, and internally displaced people — and vulnerable host communities. HIAS is committed to serving in crises, whether in Ukraine, Afghanistan, Venezuela, or Chad, or whether the crisis is a complex protracted conflict or a sudden natural disaster. No matter what the situation, HIAS stands for a world in which displaced persons find welcome, safety, and opportunity.

Partnerships

The strength of HIAS' partnerships is foundational to its quality programming. Prior to the conflict, HIAS maintained over 20 national partnerships, which are being activated and reconfigured to support urgent needs.

Many of these partnerships aided the same communities which are now among the most vulnerable. During this emergency, HIAS expanded its partnerships with local refugee-focused organizations like JACC and Negev Refugee Center, and formed crucial new partnerships with national agencies such as ERAN, a lifesaving volunteer organization providing mental health first-aid to all residents of Israel in emotional distress (by telephone and online, free of charge, anonymous, and confidential).

About HIAS

HIAS is the international Jewish humanitarian organization that provides vital services to refugees and asylum seekers in more than 20 countries. We advocate for the rights of all forcibly displaced people to rebuild their lives and seek to create a world in which they find welcome, safety, and opportunity.
